2.0 MARKET ANALYSIS	25
Introduction	25
Consumers classifiable as retail investors	26
Market overview.....	26
A significant proportion of consumers have at least some exposure to security-based invs.	26
What is the value of their funds committed to security-based investments?.....	27
The segmentation of the latest sample is very similar to that recorded by the original investigation.	27
What is their age profile?.....	29
The percentage of all consumers classifiable as retail investors rises in line with increasing age... ..	29
What is their household income profile?.....	30
... with a similar finding visible if respondents are split by annual household income	30
What is their geographic profile?.....	31
Wealthier retail investors are most likely to be found in London and the wider South-East region ...	31
What is the impact of having children?.....	32
Number of children aged under 25 has little influence on holdings of security-based investments... ..	32
What is the impact of employment status?	33
Wealthier invs. are particularly prevalent among the retired and self-employed constituencies	33
Analysis by type of security-based investment	34
Current penetration.....	34
Consumers are most likely to be defined as retail investors through holding equity ISAs... ..	34
... although holdings of both Child Trust Funds and SIPPs appear to be increasing.....	34

INVESTOR METRICS: RETAIL CUSTOMER AND PRIVATE CLIENT BEHAVIOUR IN UK SECURITY-BASED INVESTMENTS

For most products, pen. rates are far higher among those with more than £25,000 invested.....	34
Intention to purchase	37
Interest in OEICs, unit trusts and investment trusts appears to be declining among retail investors.	37
Analysis by primary underlying instrument of investment	40
Current penetration	40
Holdings among retail invs. exceed 10% only in the case of equity funds and balanced funds... ..	40
... with more exotic options appealing mainly to those with a portfolio worth more than £25,000.....	40
Intention to purchase	42
Equity-based funds and balanced funds also dominate likely retail investment in 2008	42
Analysis by specific geography of investment	43
Current penetration	43
Retail investors may be increasingly inclined to consider funds investing in overseas securities... ..	43
... with the popularity of funds investing solely in UK equities having fallen over the last two years.	43
Intention to purchase	45
With the exception of the UK, no specific geography will attract more than 5% of retail investors ...	45
Analysis by specific business sector of investment	46
Current penetration	46
Over 10% of retail investors claim to have allocated capital to specialist financial sector funds.....	46
Intention to purchase	47
Funds investing in the shares of 'green' energy firms seem likely to attract investment in 2008	47
Analysis by style of investment	48
Current penetration	48
Products oriented towards producing capital growth are the most popular option... ..	48
... with guaranteed or protected funds also achieving a penetration rate in excess of 10%.....	48
Intention to purchase	50
It remains the case that few retail investors seem to be motivated by ethical considerations	50
Risk appetite and trading frequency of retail investors	51
Risk appetite	51
Almost one third of wealthier investors state that they are willing to take calculated risks... ..	51
Buying and selling frequency	54
... although a majority even of this group buy or sell investments once a year or less on average ..	54
Distribution interface / channel behaviour of retail investors	57
Self-direction and financial advice - current behaviour	57
The proportion of retail investors claiming to be totally self-directed has risen slightly	57
Distribution interfaces - current behaviour	60
A majority of retail investors still prefer to make new investments in a face-to-face environment ..	60
Distribution channels - current behaviour	63
High street banks and building societies continue to outgun other distribution channels.....	63
Distribution interfaces - future behaviour	66
A rise in use of the Internet will occur only at the expense of other remote distribution interfaces... ..	66
Distribution channels - future behaviour	69
... and it remains doubtful whether fund supermarkets can turn forecast into actual progress	69
Key factors determining choice of investment manager	72
Historic performance of the investment manager remains the most important factor... ..	72
... with retail investors least likely to choose a fund manager on the basis of its brand... ..	72
... although numerous other factors also have a bearing on the behaviour of retail investors	72
Awareness and usage of fund supermarkets and discount brokers	75
Barclays Funds Market and Hargreaves Lansdown record the highest utilisation rates... ..	75
... with Saga scoring most highly in terms of overall awareness among retail investors	75
3.0 COMPETITOR ANALYSIS	79
Introduction	79
Awareness	81

INVESTOR METRICS: RETAIL CUSTOMER AND PRIVATE CLIENT BEHAVIOUR IN UK SECURITY-BASED INVESTMENTS

Awareness rates are highest for companies providing a broad range of financial services.....	81
... with specialist investment managers excluded from the top ten for overall recognition	81
A majority of customers have a limited knowledge only of the wider market for investments.....	81
Allianz Global Investors has probably been most successful in improving its recognition rating.....	84
More affluent investors tend to have higher awareness levels of investment management firms... ..	86
... with only two providers scoring more highly among investors with holdings below £25,000	88
Trust.....	89
Specialist investment managers tend to achieve a higher ranking for trust than for awareness	89
Schroders has achieved a significant improvement in its ranking for trust since the original survey.....	92
Wealthier retail investors are more inclined to trust specialist investment management firms.....	94
... with the difference particularly marked in the case of many of the larger investment managers.....	96
The correlation between scores for awareness and for trust among retail invs. is almost perfect.....	97
Usage.....	98
Only one investment management firm is used by more than three in ten retail investors	98
Specialist fund managers achieve significantly higher utilisation rates among wealthier investors.....	98
The data also facilitates computation of approx. funds under management per retail investor	102
Six companies possess a high number of retail investors with relatively high average holdings.....	105
